

CEC Equality and Diversity – Policy Statement 2019 - 2020

Cornwall Environmental Consultants Ltd is an Equality and Diversity employer and is committed to the promotion of diversity and the elimination of unfair discrimination on the grounds of (but not restricted to) gender, race, disability, ethnic or national origin, religion, age, marital status, sexual orientation, Trades Union or Staff Organisation membership, political persuasion, employment status and membership of associations.

Cornwall Environmental Consultants implement reasonable adjustments to comply with the Equality Act 2010 and all their buildings meet regulations and requirements relating to this act.

Although these requirements apply to all employment matters and are not restricted to recruitment and selection, training and career progression, particular attention is paid to ensuring that all eligible people have equal opportunity for employment and advancement on the basis of their ability, qualifications and suitability for the job.

All staff and volunteers are required to co-operate in the maintenance of our Equality and Diversity policy in all aspects of their work and conduct while on duty. Failure to comply will lead to disciplinary action in accordance with the Trust's & CEC's Disciplinary Policy.

The Equality and Diversity Policy is reviewed on at least an annual basis to ensure compliance with changes in legislation.

The senior staff / Board member responsible for the implementation and monitoring of CEC's Equality and Diversity Policy is Philip Hills, Director / Consultancy Manager.

Date of last review: Jan 2020

Equality and Diversity Policy

CODE OF PRACTICE

Our commitment:

- To ensure that CEC's recruitment procedures promote Equality and Diversity for all
- To create an environment in which individual differences and the contributions of all our staff are recognised and valued.
- To recognise that every employee is entitled to a working environment that promotes dignity and respect to all. No form of intimidation, bullying or harassment will be tolerated.
- To ensure that training, development and progression opportunities are available to all staff.
- To recognise that equality in the workplace is good management practice and makes sound business sense.
- To regularly review all our employment practices and procedures to ensure fairness.
- To monitor employment recruitment methods and applications data.
- To firmly state that any breach of our equality policy, e.g. discrimination, harassment and victimisation, will be regarded as misconduct and will result in disciplinary proceedings.
- To ensure that this policy is fully supported by senior management and is agreed with employees. The policy and its contents are communicated at induction stage, with any changes and/or updates notified and discussed at staff meetings.
- To monitor and review this policy annually.

Recruitment

Job description

The content of job descriptions and person specifications must be strictly relevant to the requirements of the job. Where experience and/or academic qualifications are criteria for selection, these will be geared to the requirements of the job and will not be set at an artificially high standard.

Advertising

Details of all permanent posts, that are created or become vacant, must be advertised in writing both internally and externally. The advertisement will be designed to appeal to as wide a spectrum of people as possible and who are likely to meet the person specification. Advertisements should make clear the basic requirements and qualifications for the job. All advertisements should state that CEC is an Equality and Diversity Employer.

Every applicant will be sent, in addition to details of the post applied for, a copy of a summary of CEC's Equality and Diversity Policy and an Equality and Diversity monitoring form to complete. This will be used for the monitoring of recruitment practice.

Selection

The suitability of each applicant will be measured against the requirements for the job by the use of interviews and, where required, selection tests which have been examined to ensure that they are related to job requirements. Shortlisting must be based only on information in the application form using the stipulations of the job description and person specification as the criteria. The criteria for any initial selection must be objective and consistently applied to all applicants.

A record will be kept and signed of the criteria used in the shortlisting process and of reasons why candidates have been shortlisted or rejected for incorporation into the recruitment monitoring process.

Interviewing

Interviews must be conducted by at least two individuals. Wherever possible the same interviewing panel will be used for a given round of interviews.

Whilst equal treatment for all does not necessarily mean an identical interview for all, the content of questions and interviews should be agreed in advance by those involved and should relate to the person specification and job description. Each interview for a particular post should be broadly similar in form and content so as to ensure a consistent approach to all candidates.

Every interviewer must keep their own written record of the interviewing and selection process. This must be incorporated into the records for use in the recruitment monitoring process. The person chairing will sign a record of the reasons for selecting and rejecting candidates. Candidates will be informed that a record is kept.

In determining whether to reject a candidate, interviewers must consider only factors relevant to the job. The criteria applied to the interview must be those listed in the job description and person specification. Interviewers must not ask questions about personal circumstances unrelated to the requirements of the job.

Where there is doubt about a disabled candidate's suitability for employment because of the nature of the disability, further advice must be sought as to the nature of the disability and the availability of aids to employment or adaption of buildings before a decision is taken. A successful disabled candidate will be appointed subject to the availability of resources to make the necessary adaptations. CEC will also look at its method of work with the aim of amending them, if reasonably possible in order to accommodate the disability.

If any member of an interviewing panel, or any candidate for interview, feels that discrimination has occurred in the selection process, the matter should be recorded and reported immediately to the Consultancy Manager or one of the directors. No decision will be made until the issue is resolved.

Appointment

Every person employed by CEC must be made aware at the earliest opportunity of the CEC's Equality and Diversity Policy, of the application of the policy and of that person's role in carrying out the policy, as stipulated in the person's job description.

Promotion

CEC aims to promote employees on a fair and non-discriminatory basis where opportunities are available. In order to achieve this, the promotion criteria will relate specifically to an assessment of the individual's ability to handle the proposed promotion. The Trust will periodically review the promotion procedure under the monitoring section of the policy.

Training

CEC aims to provide training opportunities which will allow all employees to develop skills appropriate to their job and to further their career development. Those responsible for organising in-service training must ensure that there is regular monitoring of participants on all training courses to see whether any groups are being under-represented. This will include a record of training received by individuals. The staff appraisal system should identify training needs and it is the responsibility of the Director to look at suitable ways of meeting those needs.

CEC is committed to providing training for staff subject to the availability of resources, so that the Equality and Diversity Policy on service delivery can be implemented and the training plan followed and updated.

Equal Pay

CEC acknowledges that men and women are entitled to be paid equally without any bias on the grounds of sex and that this right is set out in the Treaty of Rome and is enforceable under UK Law.

All reasonable steps will be taken to ensure that male and female staff receive equal pay for the same work and for work rated as equivalent and for work of equal value.

CEC will review existing and future pay policies and structures and continue to monitor the impact of such policies and structures.

CEC will eliminate the possibility of bias on the grounds of sex arising in its pay structures and will accordingly fairly pay all its employees, justly rewarding everyone for their contributions to CEC's continuing success.

Harassment at work

Harassment is unsolicited and unwelcome workplace behaviour which adversely affects the dignity of the recipient.

Where the behaviour is motivated by gender, marital status, race, colour, national or ethnic origin, nationality or disability it also amounts to infringement of equal employment opportunity.

CEC is committed to ensuring that no harassment or victimisation at work, whatever the motivation, is overlooked or condoned. Such behaviour can range from extreme forms such as violence or bullying to less obvious actions like practical jokes and ridiculing colleagues or subordinates.

Conduct becomes harassment if it persists and it has been made clear that it is regarded as offensive by the recipient, although a single offensive act can amount to harassment if it is sufficiently serious.

Any form of harassment will be considered a potential disciplinary matter.

Sexual harassment at work

Sexual harassment is conduct at work directed towards an employee by another employee or group of employees which is of a sexual nature, or which is based on a person's sex, and which is regarded as unwelcome or offensive to the recipient.

The following are examples which illustrate the sort of conduct which may be treated as sexual harassment. This is not an exhaustive list:

- unwanted physical contact, or conduct which is intimidatory, or physically or verbally abusive. Harassment can also be non-verbal, for example, staring or gestures;
- suggestions that sexual favours may further a person's career, or that refusal may hinder it;
- sexual advances, propositions, suggestions or pressure for sexual activity at or outside work;
- derogatory or demeaning remarks based on gender, or the display of sexually explicit material in the workplace.

Sexual harassment is a form of denial of equal employment opportunity that has the effect of insulting and demeaning the employee who is harassed.

Racial Discrimination

Racial harassment is conduct at work directed towards an employee by another employee or group of employees which is of a racial nature, or which is based on a person's race, colour or origins, and which is regarded as unwelcome or offensive to the recipient.

The following are examples that illustrate the sort of conduct which may be treated as racial harassment. This is not an exhaustive list:

- Jokes about race.
- Offensive names used.

- References to people by offensive racist descriptions.
- Verbal or physical abuse because of a person's race or colour.
- Detrimental behaviour because of a person's race.
- Denial of opportunity because of race.

A situation of harassment may be resolved informally, by talking directly to the person who is responsible for the harassment. However if an employee believes that are the subject of harassment they should make a formal complaint to their line manager or if the complaint is about their manager to the next level of management. Depending on the seriousness of the allegation, the alleged harasser may be suspended on full pay while the matter is being investigated under CEC's disciplinary procedures.

Grievance/ Disciplinary procedure

See also CEC Disciplinary & Dismissal Procedure – ref cec/165

No member of staff or any volunteers should have to suffer any treatment which contravenes their basic human rights from other members of staff or volunteers. Complaints of discrimination, abuse, harassment, etc, will be treated seriously and investigated with all possible speed, confidentiality and sensitivity. Such activities, if established against CEC staff (or volunteers), will be dealt with as misconduct under CEC's disciplinary procedure as laid out in the Statement of Employment and CEC's Disciplinary & Dismissal Procedure (procedure ref cec/165). Anyone feeling that a complaint has not been properly acted upon is entitled to use the grievance procedure. A right of appeal exists for all parties.

Summary of Legislation

Acts of Parliament

Equal Pay Act 1970
Human Rights Act 1998
Civil Partnership Act 2004
Disability Discrimination Act 2005
Equality Act 2010

Regulations

Sex Discrimination (Gender Reassignment) Regulations 1999
Race Relations Act 1976 (Amendment) Regulations 2003
Employment Equality (Religion or Belief) Regulations 2003
Employment Equality (Sexual Orientation) Regulations 2003
Disability Discrimination Act (Amendment) Regulations 2003
Employment Equality (Sex Discrimination) Regulations 2005
Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006

The main legislation relating to CEC's Equality and Diversity Policy is:

The Equal Pay Act 1980

The Equal Pay Act 1980 (and its amendments, 1983) establish the rights of women and men to equal treatment in relation to contractual terms and conditions of employment when they are employed on the same or broadly similar work, or on work if though different is of equal value.

The Equality Act 2010

The Equality Act 2010 legally protects people from discrimination in the workplace and in wider society.

It replaced previous anti-discrimination laws with a single Act, making the law easier to understand and strengthening protection in some situations. It sets out the different ways in which it's unlawful to treat someone.

It replaced the following legislation:

- Sex Discrimination Act 1975
- Race Relations Act 1976
- Disability Discrimination Act 1995
